Log Files, IP Addresses, URLs and Other Data

As is the case with most Web sites, we gather certain information automatically to analyse trends in the aggregate and administer our Web sites and Services. This information may include your Internet Protocol (IP) address (or the proxy server you use to access the World Wide Web), device and application identification numbers, your location, your browser type, your Internet service provider and/or mobile carrier, the pages and files you viewed, your searches, your operating system and system configuration information, and date/time stamps associated with your usage.

Due to Internet communications standards, when you visit or use the Company's Websites and Services, we automatically receive the URL of the website from which you came and the website to which you go when you leave our Website. This information is used to analyse overall trends, to help us improve our Websites and Services, to track and aggregate non-personal information, and to provide the Websites and Services. For example, Entanet uses IP addresses to monitor the regions from which Customers and Visitors navigate the Company's Web sites.

When you use our services, we automatically collect and store certain information in server logs. This includes, for telephony services, information such as your phone number, calling-party number, forwarding numbers, time and date of calls, duration of calls, SMS routing information and types of calls, and for connectivity services Internet protocol addresses.

Do Not Track

Currently, various browsers — including Internet Explorer, Firefox, and Safari — offer a “do not track” or “DNT” option that relies on a technology known as a DNT header, which sends a signal to Web sites’ visited by the user about the user’s browser DNT preference setting. Entanet does not currently commit to responding to browsers’ DNT signals with respect to the Company’s Web sites, in part, because no common industry standard for DNT has been adopted by industry groups, technology companies or regulators, including no consistent standard of interpreting user intent. Entanet takes privacy and meaningful choice seriously and will make efforts to continue to monitor developments around DNT browser technology and the implementation of a standard.

Entanet may provide bulletin boards, blogs, or chat rooms on the Company’s Web sites. Any personal information you choose to submit in such a forum may be read, collected, or used by others who visit these forums, and may be used to send you unsolicited messages. Entanet is not responsible for the personal information you choose to submit in these forums.

Entanet posts a list of Customers and testimonials on the Company’s Web sites that contain information such as Customer names and titles. Entanet obtains the consent of each Customer prior to posting any information on such a list or posting testimonials.
